Washington - Today, Congressman John Olver (D-MA) sent a letter to President George W. Bush.

"The first President Bush set voluntary goals for emissions reductions in 1992, and the Clinton administration continued these efforts."

President Bush's proposal encourages utilities and manufacturers to report carbon emissions.

Olver and Congressman Wayne Gilchrest (R-MD), co-chairs of the bipartisan House Global Warming Solutions Caucus, said:

"Global warming is not going to go away by itself. I hope that President Bush will think about the need for a more aggressive approach."

Dear President Bush:

We are writing to you regarding your climate change plan outlined on Thursday, February 28, 2002.

The seriousness of climate change cannot be overstated. The Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC) has warned that global warming could have catastrophic effects on the planet.

In 1993, the Department of Energy launched the Climate Challenge program in an effort to reduce greenhouse gas emissions.

While we strongly support your intent to regulate nitrogen oxide, sulfur dioxide, and mercury emissions, we believe that a more comprehensive approach is needed.

Other nations are moving forward with their own climate change plans and simultaneous efforts to address global warming.
